WALKING TOURS

Unfortunately, just as we were getting ready to re-start our popular historic walking tours, we had to close down again.

When we do get to open up, you'll see that we have cards or printed and framed by you. Purchase instructions are located at the bottom of each photo's page.

Our Mendocino Coast history publications are fascinating reading and continue to be for sale at our online store, or contact us at info@kelleyhousemuseum.org to mail something to you.

DONATIONS & GIFTS

GEMS! A generous June Scofield has just gifted us with 253 carats of loose, cut amethyst gemstones. A wonderful end-of-year present! She said she appreciated the opportunity to help the Kelley House and at the same time take advantage of the tax write-off from her donation.

Remember that the 2020 CARES Act relief initiative allows taxpayers to deduct up to $300 in cash donations to qualifying organizations without itemizing deductions. Kelley House Museum qualifies!

DOLLS! We call the east room upstairs in the Museum "The Girls' Bedroom." Here you can see all sorts of Victorian-era lingerie draped about, feminine accessories on antique dressers, and the names of its former inhabitants (Daisy and Abbie) etched into an original 1860 glass window pane.

There are also several antique dolls propped up in diminutive Victorian wicker chairs and hand-made cradles. Thanks to Lucia Zacha, Barbara Reed and Grace Van Doren, there will be more as this room is being turned into a doll exhibit.

Barbara and Grace brought us ten lovely old dolls sporting a variety of costumes. There's a Japanese doll (pictured), a Spanish one, a girl in a sailor suit, two shaggy Teddy bears, and others. They will join the four donated dolls already residing in that cheery room (thank you Peggy Smith) and placed in the antique child's bed that Lucia donated.

Lucia's parents, Bill and Jenny Zacha, founders of the Mendocino Art Center, discovered this Eastlake-style wooden bed with its carved head- and foot-board inside the Albert Brown house on Little Lake Street when they lived there in the early 1960s. Lucia slept in it and she in turn used it for her children. We presume it belonged to the Maxwell family of the late 1800s, which included well-known local photographer Perley Maxwell and his two children.

Now Kelley House will preserve it and display it with our expanding doll exhibit so that visitors will get to enjoy this new vignette when the Museum again opens.

RESEARCH & ARCHIVES

The museum is closed, but plenty of work is still going on! Curator Karen McGrath and Research Volunteers Carol Dominy and Katy Tahja continue to field questions that come in via email and phone. Here's some of the most recent:

- the date when the exterior steps were added to the Maxwell-Jarvis house on Little Lake Street
- the history of the Sea Foam Lodge, south of Little River
- information on the people who lived in the McLeod house on Lansing Street at Ocean View north of Mendocino
- an international query about the 1904 death and final resting place near Fort Bragg of a great grandfather, a Finnish woodsman
- the availability of logging films from the early 20th century
- an author's request for information on the three Severance brothers who owned and operated hotels on the coast, including the one that caught fire in 1870 and burned up half of Mendocino's Main Street.

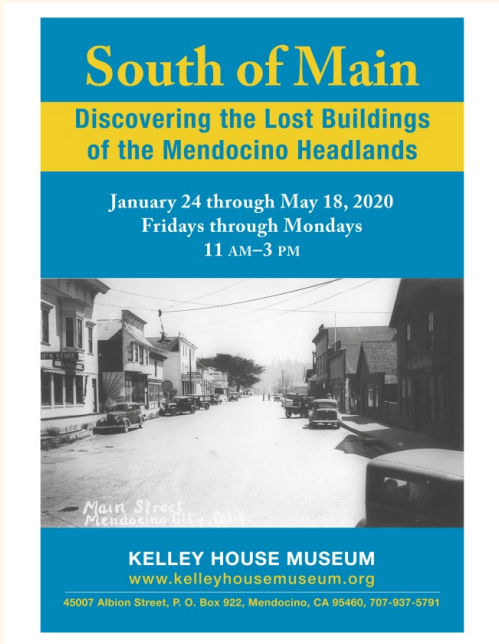

Some of these queries can be answered with information already in our files and databases, while others require additional (and always interesting) research work.

EXHIBITS

South of Main was the last exhibit we enjoyed inside the Museum, but you can still see it online.

HOUSE & GARDEN

The Kelley Pond sure needs some water, as do we all. But the rest of the garden is looking pretty good. The large red-berried cotoneaster that lives above the pond is in full splendor near the arbor in the image below.

A special thank you to Robert Kuhn and crew for including the Kelley House pond area in their downtown trash pick up.

The Board & Staff of the Kelley House wish you a peaceful & joyous holiday season!
